

Our energy policy

Our energy policy provides the guidelines for our energy-efficient conduct and serves as an orientation for all employees with regard to handling energy in everyday life.

- Our energy policy is an integral part of our corporate strategy. It is subject to regular evaluation and updated if required.
- All laws and regulations as well as all other energy-related requirements applicable to FRÄNKISCHE form the basis of our energy policy. We consistently adhere to these. Relevant information remains accessible at all times.
- We apply cutting-edge technologies to continuously enhance energy-related performance. We support this approach by opting for energy-efficient products and services when making purchasing decisions.
- Our energy management system helps us to review and implement our energy-specific objectives. The resources required for that are made available. We include both our staff and our contractors into this system. A decisive element of our energy management system is the review of the specified targets by corporate management.
- We consider energy-efficient conduct to be a fundamental management responsibility. By continued training coupled with open communication, we motivate our employees to act in an energy-efficient manner, since each and every employee is solely in charge of his/her own energy-conscious deeds.
